IN THE SALTY SEA.

water sports

The Cantabrian sea is subjected to the power of the wind and waves.

Its behaviour is rather predictable using weather forecasting models; so, if you have the necessary skills and proceed cautiously, the sea is relatively safe. In the Cantabrian coast, beaches, bays and estuaries follow one another, providing a suitable setting for different sports, welcoming all levels, from beginner to advanced. Water temperature ranges between 10 to 20°C from winter to summer.

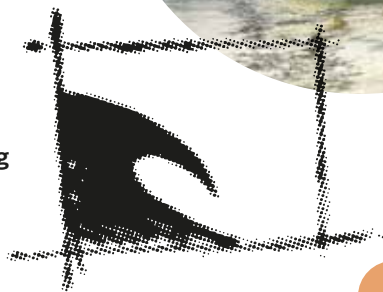

The different surfing disciplines—SUP, bodyboarding, kayaking, windsurfing and kitesurfing—are widespread on this coast, where it is possible to find moderate surf near the shore, suitable for beginners, and big, deep-water waves just for really expert surfers. Scuba diving has virtually this wide diversity, since it is easy to find depths above 20 or 30 metres quite close to the seashore.

Sailing is another deeply rooted sport in the region, having the possibility to enrol in courses and crash courses for all levels. There are different types of sea tours for the whole family available, from renting a canoe, a sailboat or a motorboat to just hopping onto a sightseeing boat.

When you are in the sea, exert extreme caution, check for weather warnings and hire the services of a sailing instructor or trained skipper.

MAR

go along the watercourse

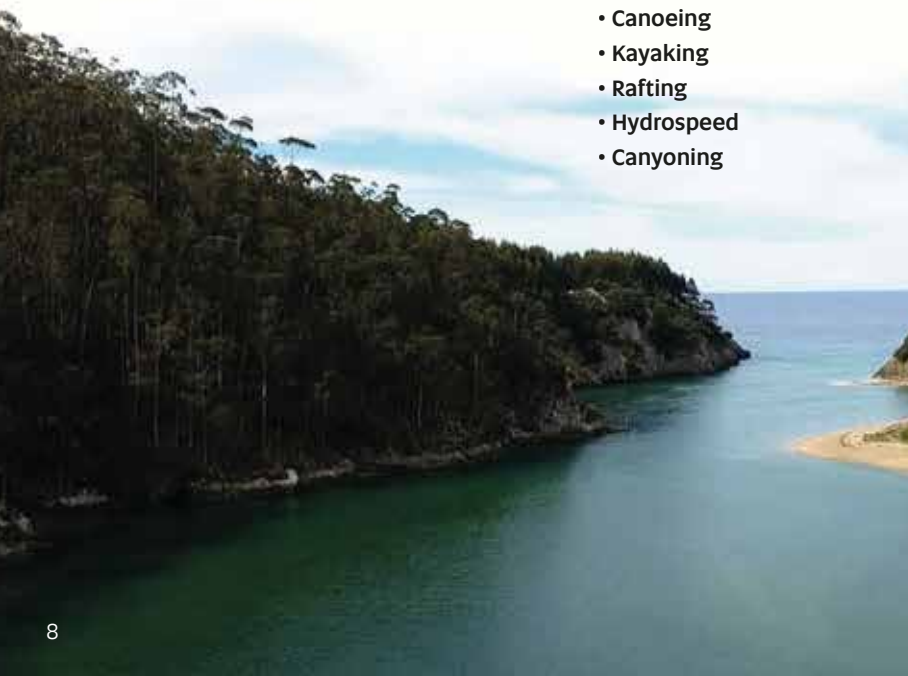

The fast-flowing, rushing rivers of Cantabria are short; the distance from their source to their mouth is just a few tens of kilometres, all but the River Ebro, which stretches 70 kilometres throughout the Campoo and Valderredible valleys. In the upper dales and in the mountainous areas, it is hard to find a spot that is not surrounded by the background sound of flowing water.

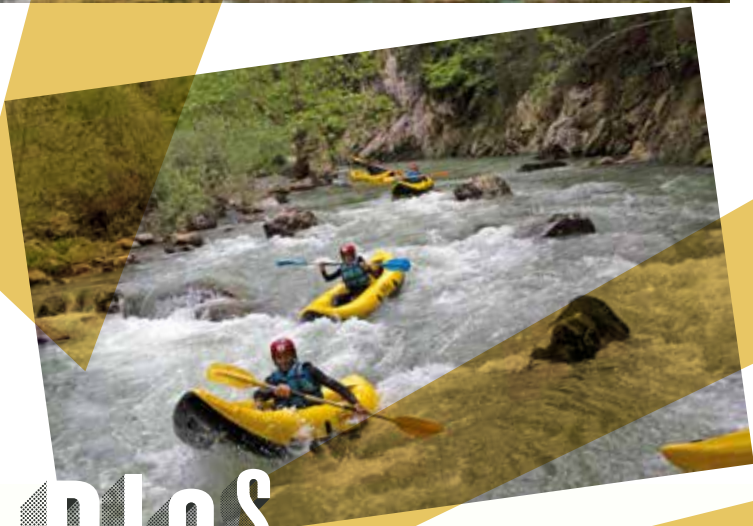

The use of rock climbing techniques is normally required when canyoning through the gorges, which is practiced in the upper reaches of the rivers.

The middle reaches are perfect for practicing sports such as rafting or hydrospeed. At all times, you need to be aware of the power of the current, since the level of difficulty and safety of the activity depend on it. Some Cantabrian rivers are frequently used by highly expert canoeists. The lower reaches near the estuaries are the regular settings of canoe and kayak outings, which are usually suitable for the whole family.

When you are in the river, exert extreme caution and hire the services of a guide.

ON THE HEIGHTS.

hills and mountains

From the summits of Picos de Europa, above 2,600 metres, to the sheer cliffs that stand over the seacoast, the geographical relief of Cantabria boasts endless opportunities for sportspeople of all levels. You can take up rock climbing, or improve your climbing skills, either in rock or ice, in the different schools and via ferratas. Moreover, you can follow mountain trails of varying difficulty on foot, wearing snowshoes or by cross-country skis during the winter time. The Alto Campoo ski resort offers facilities suitable for both skiing and snowboarding.

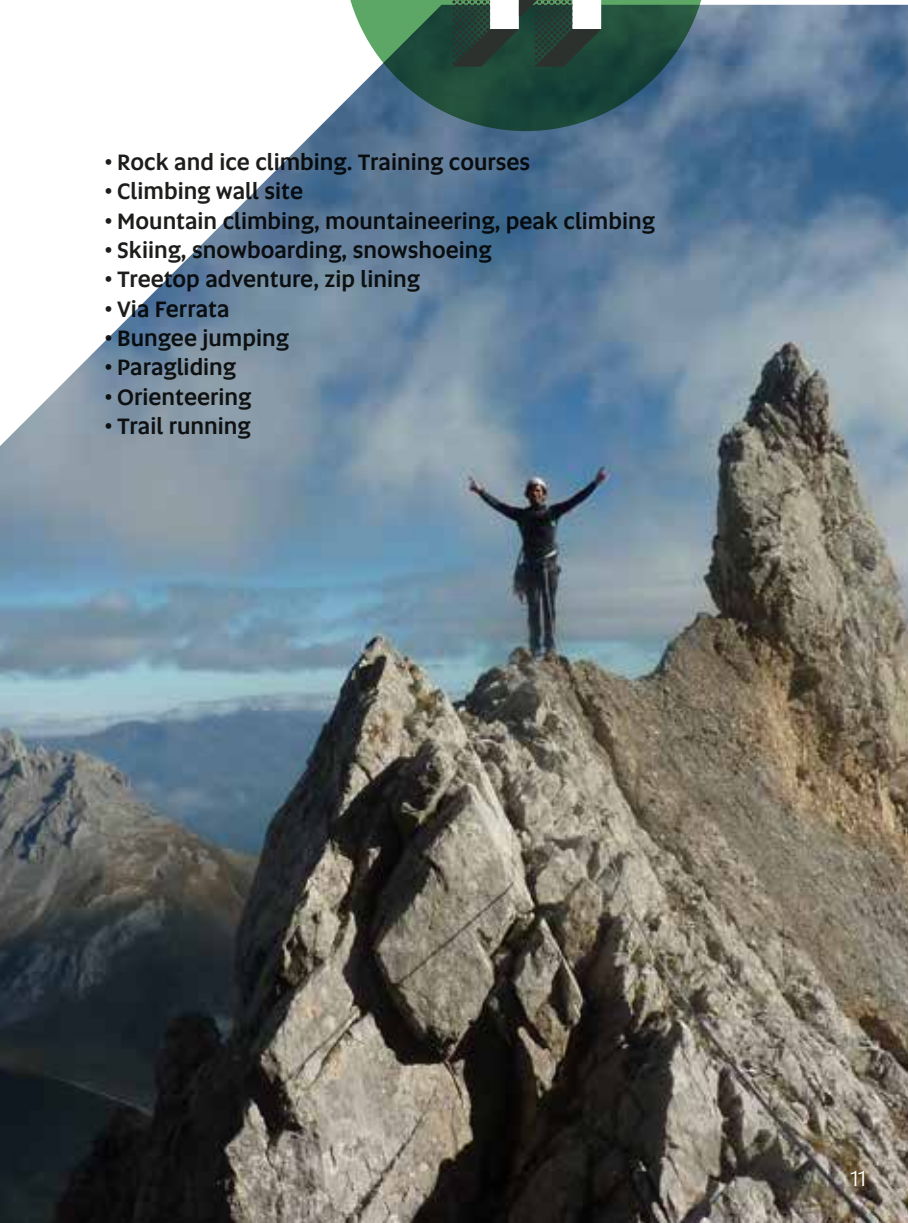

All the areas have businesses where you will find expert guides that will ensure your safety. They will help you to plan ahead and prepare appropriate activities for the needs and aspirations of everyone in your group. New activities, such as trail-running and orienteering races, are gaining popularity among sportspeople. Kids can enjoy zip lining among the trees within a safe and controlled park environment. And for the bravest ones, activities such as bungee jumping or paragliding will be a source of intense emotions.

Remember that when you are in the mountain it is absolutely essential to take every precaution, check the weather forecast and follow the advice of your guides.

NATURE.

observing and learning

There is something unique about observing plant and animal life, the landscape, merging with nature. Seeing through the eyes of an expert who will teach you how to look at things, guiding you through indistinguishable forest paths, riverbeds and cliffs, you will learn how to see more. Natural spaces in Cantabria offer a great variety of surroundings where you will come across species you only knew from books; rock formations which show what took place millions of years ago; as well as trees that, year after year, century after century, produce leaves and flowers that wave to you as you pass by.

This is Cantabria. Here, great professionals are at work to offer plans for everyone, including those who are more discerning.

RURAL TOURISM.

ethnography and traditions

Old trades, farming, food producing and tool making all contain an essential ingredient: traditional knowledge. By following cultural itineraries and by visiting wineries, artisans, working farms and interpretation centres related to traditions, you will be able to get in touch with the roots and origins of things. Most companies dedicated to these kind of activities organize participatory workshops where you will learn how much you can do with your hands, just by having someone to teach you. You will possibly bring some object home with you, but you will surely take many things with you that will stick to your heart and memory.

UNDERGROUND.

caves and mines

Cantabria's subsoil mirrors what you can see on the surface: twisted cracked rocks, underground streams, chasms and narrow passageways that extend through kilometres, presenting a challenge even to the most expert ones. The good news is that nowadays there are many activities related to caving which are suitable for a wide variety of people, from easy caving tours inside lit-up caves with no barriers, or even into rehabilitated mines, to going inside natural caves which are tailored to the needs and experience of every group. The qualified professionals dedicated to these activities in Cantabria will ensure you the utmost safety, so as to enjoy these hidden sceneries to the fullest, while sharing amazing experiences with you that will be hard to forget.

ON WHEELS.

bicycles and other vehicles

The wheel is not just one of mankind's greatest invention, it is also one of the most fun. In Cantabria, cycling fans will find the roads where some world champions have grown up and wild routes through natural landscapes and mountain trails. Whether you are the sportsperson seeking demanding challenges or just want to have a good time on a bike lane with your family or your friends, you choose the level of difficulty and Cantabria provides you with the setting. Businesses specializing in this type of activities offer tailor-made packages that may include the whole equipment, even the bike, in nearly every case.

RIDING.

quad bikes, 4x4, horses, hot-air balloons

Where the road ends, a new world begins: a bigger, wilder, more unpredictable world. Far away from crowds and close to nature. Whether on a horse, a power-driven vehicle or even on a hot-air balloon, there are other ways of seeing Cantabria, from unusual perspectives. From a long route around Picos de Europa, to a short walk just to get started, the operators organizing these activities can create a whole package just to suit your needs and preferences.

SHOT BY SHOT.

golf courses

Cantabria currently has eleven golf courses. They are mostly located near the coast, except one which is close to the mountains. Welcome to Seve Ballesteros's homeland. It is worth travelling to Cantabria just for the sake of breathing the air of the bay from the seashore where this world-famous golf player learned his first shots. Not only that, but the region offers the opportunity to play in golf courses of great interest for players of all levels, some of which have been designed by the great Seve himself.
